1982 RECORD BOOK AND BOXING ENCYCLO-PEDIA

The RING

FOREWORD

We had barely set up shop, shuffling papers and personnel around to see where everything fit in the new scheme of things that would ultimately become the new Ring Magazine, when a little man, who bore an uncanny resemblance to the Clement Moore characterization of another, more recognizable, character appeared.

He approached my desk and proudly proclaimed he "had more records than THE RECORD BOOK." From behind a mountain of papers which, if someone sneezed, would come cascading down in avalanche proportions, we stifled an incredulous snicker. And then personally ushered him into the offices of the Associate Editor to, charitably speaking, get rid of him so we could get back to the job at hand of creating choas out of disorder.

Thankfully, the Associate Editor had heard of the little man. More, in moving into his office he had come across laboriously hand-written cards the little man had given to his predecessor; cards which had gathered dust, but not attention. He knew the little man's work and worth. And knowing the problems that lay ahead in revamping THE RECORD BOOK—a chore not unlike trying to make chicken salad out of chicken droppings—he immediately drafted the little man for THE RECORD BOOK team. That one move, more than any other, assured us that once again THE RING RECORD BOOK would become "The Bible of Boxing." That the errors, propped throughout the fighters' records like timbers under a decaying roof, would be corrected. And that those three most distasteful words "Previous Record Unavailable" would soon fall into disuse.

That little man, who worked long and hard at making THE RING RECORD BOOK what has been called "the best book in sports," is no longer with us. He worked right up until the day of his death, scouring foreign newspapers for the latest results of prelims in faraway lands; for his life was his work, and his work was his life. And only when he finished his calling, could he face His final call.

That "little man" was John F. Johnson, and nothing, except his size, was small—not his dedication, not his contribution, and assuredly not his invaluable assistance. For his services above and beyond the call of duty—done not from duty but from love—we dedicate this book to Johnny. We loved him; we all loved him. And he will be missed not only by those of us who were privileged to work with him, but by anyone who uses THE RING RECORD BOOK.

There were others, of course, who contributed to the making of the 1982 RING RECORD BOOK. And mightily. They will not be forgotten either. Their names, household names in boxing's close household, read like a Who's Who of Boxing Authorities: Eric Armit, David H. Bloch, Luckett V. Davis, Jerry Fitch, Luis Gonzalez, Dave Hartoon, Ken Hissner, Yoo-Sang Kim, Jack Kincaid, Joe Y. Koizumi, Ray Mitchell, Gilbert Odd, Gary Phillips, Bill Schutte, and Bob Yalen.

These people, and many more, made the 1982 RING RECORD BOOK. They are all worthy of special thanks and praise. And yet, as it must, this book is dedicated to the memory of one man, our beloved "little man": John F. Johnson.
